Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 24 Nov 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning more unsettled, windy and colder over the coming days.

Today:
Many southern areas rather cloudy but dry, after any fog clears; odd spots of drizzle in places but some sunnier breaks too. Rain in the northwest will move gradually south, followed by windier, colder weather with sunshine and blustery showers.

Tonight:
Weakening rainband continues southeastwards across remaining southern areas, clearing most areas later. Further north windy and cold; inland areas mainly clear but blustery showers around coasts, wintry on Scottish hills.

Thursday:
A colder day nearly everywhere, emphasised by brisk winds. Plenty of sunny weather well inland, while areas exposed to the north will see occasional blustery showers punctuated by sunny intervals.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rain moving south on Friday followed by showers which will be wintry at times and continue through Saturday. Drier on Sunday. Very windy for a time, potentially disruptive gales.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.